

20/06/05 – Rabat, Malta

Our last day in Malta, and our last destination was Rabat, just in front of the entrance to Mdina also known as 'the silent city'. Another sunny day but we managed to find some shade in the playing field under the trees.

We started to pass on some reflectors to the kids and filled up the last few questionnaires. The major parts of Maltese schools are in the examination period so we targeted children of a younger age and the parents were interested in such subject.

Karina our now constant help together with John passed on posters to each and every shop and museum in Mdina. Shop keepers were very keen in helping and ask more about our work.

A special thanks goes to Mr. Noel Cini for his assistance from the Mdina Local Council. Time soon rushed and made our way to the our hotel in Valletta to pack and prepare for the next destination ahead.
